Friends,

The Dallas Foundation has long been a leader in bringing together funders and funding to move the needle toward greater outcomes for Dallas. Through our board-directed grants, the Foundation also takes an active and focused role driving impact on key community issues, primarily reducing intergenerational poverty.

Tomorrow's Dallas needs your generosity today. Individuals and families living in poverty will ultimately bear the consequences of the current economic conditions. And it's imperative that those with resources respond to this moment. Unrestricted and multi-year grants provide nonprofit organizations with the most flexibility to help those they serve.

Our team has put together this list of nonprofits to highlight our strategic investments in:

- Ensuring a strong and healthy start in life,
- Advancing equity and inclusion, and
- Building community and economic resilience

We've also included a number of collaborative giving opportunities hosted by the Foundation that allow you to co-invest alongside other donors.

We realize that you may have charitable interests beyond those listed here and, at the same time, take seriously our role in elevating organizations that work within our strategic priorities so that, together, we can move our community forward. I invite you to call on our team to discover and discuss additional opportunities to impactfully invest your philanthropic resources.

I hope this guide inspires you, creates community connections, and fulfills your giving spirit.

My best,

Wandayo

Matthew Randazzo President & CEO

Here for Good.

To learn more about the Racial Equity Fund, contact Angela Woodson, Director of Stewardship & Strategic Initiatives, at awoodson@dallasfoundation.org.

The Dallas Foundation's Digital Inclusion Fund focuses on closing gaps in access to broadband service in Dallas to ensure high-speed and affordable internet service is available to everyone. Broadband enables individuals and families to complete homework, attend online classes, see a healthcare provider, fill out a job application online, start a business, or purchase household necessities. Parts of Dallas experience a 31% service gap, presenting barriers that negatively affect our neighbors' quality of life and limit the economic chances for individuals as well as the city overall.
